

RONDA HOUSE

STORY

Strict, rigid building regulations that specified heights, materials, including a white palette, etc. had to be dealt to comply with them and with the personal expectations of the family that dreamt of an organic architecture with cozy gathering areas protected from windy days.

INFO

ARCHITECTS: Marina Vella Arquitectura Urbanismo

LOCATION: Cerro Azul District, Perú

AREA: 362 mq

PROJECT YEAR: 2016

INTERIORS

STORY

STONE WALL

By using this natural rugged red stone, and placing it in the center of the house the strict building regulations are fulfilled, lineal white for the house and the semi-circular organic wall wrapping spaces in color and form for the activities of family and friends and visually becoming part of the Red Hill and a protection from the windy days.

C OUTDOOR

STORY

Circulation areas, stairs and corridors to the bedrooms are organized around the semicircular stone wall. Daylight and natural ventilation are assured by skylights and small patios that fill the bedrooms and surrounding areas with light and infuse the home with the cheery ambience of a seaside holiday.